

Health Assessment Information for Refugees, Parolees and Entrants

The vision of the Florida Refugee Health Program (RHP) is to be a leader in providing culturally sensitive health services to persons who have fled their home country due to persecution (political, religious, or economic) in search for a better life and self-sufficiency in America. Within this vision is the protection of public health from communicable disease through the review of overseas medical examination records and the provision of health screenings and immunizations.

The Refugee Health Program provides, through federal funding from the federal Office of Refugee Resettlement, a health assessment and immunization services for the following groups of individuals: refugees, asylees, Cuban/Haitian asylum applicants, Cuban/Haitian entrants (including parolees), Amerasians, and certain victims of severe forms of human trafficking.
